TOURNAMENT AT SPRINGS

A Gala Week—H. J. Rendall Won Championship.

The second annual Tennis Tournament which was in progress at Bedford Springs came to an end last Friday when the finals were played in all three of the events on the program.

H. J. Rendall, the crack tennis player from Lincoln University, won the handsome silver cup offered as a prize in the Men's Singles and with it the championship of Southern Pennsylvania. At the same time he became the first holder of the Bedford Springs Challenge Cup which must be won three times to become the winner's property. His playing was brilliant throughout, especially his smashes at the net, and at no time did he seem in danger of losing the championship which he had already won last year. His opponent in the finals was T. D. Waddell of Pittsburgh, who thus won the runner-up prize. The consolation prize in this event was won by S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

The only Bedford entry, J. J. Barclay, defeated Dr. Keidel of Baltimore in the first round, 6-0, 6-0, but was himself defeated in the second by J. B. Rendall of Pittsburgh with a score of 6-3, 6-8, 6-3.

In the Men's Doubles H. J. Rendall and his brother, J. B. Rendall, won in the finals from William McCreath and Thomas Kelker, of Harrisburg, in the most hotly contested and interesting match of the tournament. The latter tried hard to keep the ball in safe territory to prevent the champion from getting in his fearful smashes, but not with sufficient success to win out in the end. The Bedford team, consisting of Paul Reed and Edwin Middleton, was defeated in the first round by the Rendall brothers in 6-1, 6-1 sets.

In the Mixed Doubles Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hibbs, of Bedford, were successful in the first round but went down to defeat in the second at the hands of William McCreath and Miss Josephine Brady, of Harrisburg. In the final round Miss Brady and Mr. McCreath won from Miss Franklin of Lancaster and Dr. Kennard of Baltimore. The ladies were both very graceful players and this match was the most attractive one of the tournament.

On Friday the most amusing feature of the whole tournament took place when more than a dozen of the masculine players donned feminine wearing apparel and gave an interesting tennis burlesque. After much horseplay combined with uproarious laughter on the part of the audience, the "women's doubles" were decided by Messrs. Waddell and Garland winning the final match from H. J. Rendall and T. T. Sheppard. It is needless to add that many of the costumes worn on this occasion were extremely striking.

Friday night the tournament was definitely brought to a close with an elaborate Tennis Dinner tendered to the players by the hotel management, when singing, impromptu speeches, and cheering were the order of the night; and it is not too much to say that Tennis Week was thoroughly enjoyed by all who took part in it, while especial thanks is due to the Tennis Committee for the pains they were at to make everything pass off smoothly. The interest of the spectators in the tournament was intense and many people drove out to the courts from this place every morning and evening to watch the tennis cracks from Princeton, Yale and Cornell contest for victory with the club men of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Cumberland.

BURNS PROVE FATAL

Explosion of Oil Can Results in Death of Everett Lady.

Tuesday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock Mrs. Lloyd K. Beegle of Everett was rekindling her fire preparatory to ironing. She poured coal oil on some wood in the stove when smouldering coals ignited the oil causing the can to explode. With her clothing in flames the woman ran into the yard where she was seen by a man who was working nearby. He hastened to her assistance and succeeded in smothering the flames with carpet, but not before she was burned in a terrible manner. Her feet and face were the only parts of the body untouched by the flames. Medical aid was secured but she lingered until Wednesday night, when death relieved her agony.

Mrs. Beegle was aged about 34 years and was Katherine Grove before her marriage to Lloyd K. Beegle several years ago. Her husband and two children, aged about seven and four years, respectively, survive her. Mr. Beegle is an employee of Whetstone's Department Store. The funeral will be held today.

FURNACES TO OPEN

Repairs and Improvements Being Made at Earlston Plant.

We are officially advised that Hon. Joseph E. Thropp's Earlston furnace will be blown in again probably within three weeks. During the period since January last when the furnace was blown out, the machinery and equipment have been gone over thoroughly, and brick-layers are now at work finishing up the lining. Some quite extensive improvements are being made to the blowing engines but this will not delay the starting of the furnace. The iron ore mines in Pennsylvania, Maryland and West Virginia, as well as the limestone quarry near Ashcom, have been running steadily during the hard times of the past few months and large quantities of iron ore and limestone have been stored at Earlston and at Saxton.

It is not announced whether the coal and coke works at Kearney will start with the furnace, and there are rumors that there have been some points of difference between the management and some of the employees at Kearney and that the scale has not yet been signed by Mr. Thropp. It is to be hoped that these differences can be adjusted so that the Kearney operations may start up again in full. The scale was signed promptly by Mr. Thropp in April last for the Melrose and Gordon Coal and Coke Works near Dudley and these plants have been running steadily ever since, in marked contrast to conditions at other points of the Broad Top region.

Mr. Thropp's furnace at Saxton has been running steadily thus far except for about ten weeks in the early spring, when the iron business was practically dead. Though trade reports do not show very great improvement in this business as yet, it is evident that the tide has turned and the demand in all branches of the iron and steel trade is slowly getting better, though prices are at so low a level that a good many manufacturers prefer to let their plants remain idle rather than to operate them without some profit.

The Earlston furnace has a daily capacity of 200 to 225 tons of pig iron, and the Saxton furnace 175 to 200 tons, they being by far the largest producers in Central Pennsylvania, exclusive of the steel works and furnaces in Harrisburg and Johnstown. When all the plants are running there are over 1,200 men on the pay roll.

Killed at Saxton

Steve Filiveri, an Italian employed at the furnace, was killed by falling from the cage used in carrying material to the top of the furnace at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. The cage was in motion when the accident occurred. The lad was aged about 19 years.

An alarm of fire Monday afternoon called out the Fire Department but their services were dispensed with. An oil stove in the kitchen of W. B. Mock's home in some way caused a slight fire, damaging the carpet and articles of clothing of Mrs. Mock and Calvin Diehl, who attempted to subdue the blaze. No serious damage was done but an explosion was narrowly averted.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Visits Many Sections of the "Pine Tree State."

Bangor, Me.

Manchester, N. H., is another of New England's very pretty cities, with seventy thousand inhabitants. Here it is that the celebrated Amoskeag Cotton Mills are situated; they are miles long, and employ over fifteen thousand hands in their various departments; here the celebrated Amoskeag prints, especially gingham, all fast colors, and all kinds of white goods are made. These will not fade. By the way that reminds me of a story, no a truth, that happened in where Foster's grocery now is. "Pete" Radabaugh kept store there once and Mrs. Philip Zimmers was making some purchases when Mr. R. said, "Oh! Mrs. Zimmers, don't you want to buy some of dem fine calicoes?" Mrs. Z. admired the bright goods and praised them when Mr. R. said "I will sell you dem calicoes for a 'levy' and so sure as I tell you, Mrs. Zimmers, dem goods cost me fifteen cents a yard. No fade in dem calicoes for every thread is woven in and dey are perfect and the price is very cheap." "But," said Mrs. Z., "if they cost fifteen cents and you sell them for twelve and a half a yard you would lose money." "No, no, you see we buy and sell so many that we can afford to do this; how many yards will you have?" In those days the art of making these goods so beautiful and good was not known.

Manchester has nine large shoe shops, one of the largest in the country being located there. Leaving Manchester via the Boston and Maine R. R., I was soon at Portsmouth, N. H. Oh! how hot it was, but I was on the street and at work and had tried to see three men (none of them at home) in an hour. This being the case I at once took a trolley car for Dover, and when I got there I found one man a mile this way and another just across the line in Maine. I feasted on blueberry pie which gave me strength, and before I ate again I saw and sold both and had retraced my steps to Portsmouth, where I stayed at the Kearsage Hotel—a very good one. Next morning I saw and sold two of the three that were absent the day before and left the town at nine for Biddeford and Portland, Me.

This whole country seems to be one string of mills and shoe shops, each one of these just a little larger than the one on Gravel Hill, where Jacob Smith made Will, John O., and Dave learn to peg soles, etc. I have been to Lewiston, Auburn, and other Maine towns, each one of which is a manufacturing town and has one or more industries that are being pushed right along. The paper and pulp mills are very numerous. The Democrats had a big rally at Lewiston where the Obadiah Camp had a blow out the night I was there and I had my share of the fun, lying in bed listening to the speeches and the music. There I stayed at the Attwood House—medium.

Waterville, Me., called by many the "garden spot of New England," is situated on the Kennebec river, 20 miles from Augusta, the capital. Its wide streets and avenues are lined with large trees which afford delightful shade during the short summer and in the fall people gather up the leaves and use them to protect their water pipes from the severe weather in winter. The nights here are always cool, even during July and August. The houses and lawns are of more than ordinary beauty, thereby demonstrating that thrift and enterprise abound here. The Maine Central, the principal railroad of Eastern New England, has many of its shops here. The great Poland Springs are only 60 miles away. This city boasts much of its educational facilities, as it is the seat of the celebrated Colby College, an institution of high rank.

Just across the Kennebec river is located the block house erected over one hundred and fifty years ago and known as Fort Halifax. It was erected to shelter the early settlers from the attacks of the Indians. The Elmwood is the principal hotel and my how they charge you. The capitol building at Augusta did not cost any $13,000,000 I'll bet, though it is built of Hallowell granite. It is Quaker plain, yet it fills the bill and the people are satisfied. Aroostook is the largest county in the state and the greatest potato section. Here many farmers plant anywhere from forty to a hundred acres in spuds and they harvest on an average three hundred bushels per acre. Up here they get barrels of potatoes as a yield where you at home scarcely get potatoes either large or small. They have a machine here that digs and puts the potatoes in the bag as well, but some stones and clods get into the bag also.

Since writing you last I have seen quite a number of deer and moose as the train sped along. One day I saw seven deer and two moose, the latter were the first wild ones I had ever seen. Leaving Portland on a trolley bound for Brunswick and Bath we ran along Casco Bay for fifteen miles. It is a beautiful sheet of clear water and is said to have three hundred and sixty-five islands in it—I did not count them, however. Bath is famous the world over for its shipbuilding since the earliest settlers lived here. It lies on the bank of the Kennebec river, about twelve miles from its mouth. The chief industry is the building of ships and steel and wooden ships grow up side by side. Bath is rated as an educational centre.

Very large ice houses are to be seen all along the Kennebec river and here is where millions upon millions of tons of clear and pure ice are harvested each winter, this ice averaging sixteen inches thick. These ice plants are all owned by the American Ice Company, a trust.

At Eastport the tide rises and falls thirty feet. Now, just think, if the memorable Raystown branch of the Juniata would rise and fall thirty feet at each tide and twice a day at that, what would become of you. At St. John's, N. B., they asked me three hundred dollars for the privilege of selling Fort Bedford peanuts; this was to be forever and all over the country. Then I realized that I was out of the U. S. and I said no, no, and shaking the Canadian dust off my shoes, set sail for the Hub.

Yours truly,

M. P. Heckerman.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS

Do Not Endanger Life When a Bedford Citizen Shows You the Cure

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Bedford testimony:

Mrs. H. A. Cook, living on Penn Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my family for a long time and have always given such good results that I believe I am warranted in recommending them. My brother-in-law was suffering very severely from an attack of kidney trouble, procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Irvine's drug store, and began their use. It took only a short use of this remedy to drive these attacks away. Doan's Kidney Pills always act quickly and never cause any inconvenience."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. Aug. 21-2t.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Aluminum articles may be cleaned with silver polish in the same manner that silver is cleaned.

A bowl of lime placed in a damp cupboard will tend to dry it. The lime should be renewed every week or two, as it loses its power.

Remember, when putting meat in the ice chest, not to place it against the ice, as it will draw the flavor out of the meat.

When buying a sirloin of beef avoid the end cut, for it has a round piece of bone on the upper side, besides being coarser meat than in the other cuts.

To kill cabbage worms, sift pepper or flour and salt on the cabbages when worms begin to work. It will kill the worms and not hurt the cabbage.

Kerosene is excellent in cleaning hardwood or stained floors. Remove dust and wipe a small piece at a time, then rub the oil off with a flannel cloth.

To keep mold from pickles, in the top of each jar or bottle place a layer of horseradish roots sliced thin.

The easiest method of cleaning piano keys and other articles made of ivory is with a soft cloth dampened in alcohol.

Remember that the skins of peaches may be removed as those of tomatoes are—by plunging them into boiling—not merely hot—water. This way of peeling is a great saving in the fruit. Oranges plunged in boiling water will always peel more easily than when not so treated.

Every coffee pot should occasionally be washed out with a solution of sal soda and boiling water.

Do not wash oilcloth or linoleum in hot suds. Use tepid water and wipe with a cloth dampened in equal parts of cold milk and water.

Machine grease can be removed by washing in cold rain water and soap. New lamp wicks, if boiled in vinegar before using, then thoroughly dried, will not smell when burning.

Tar stains can be removed by rubbing lard or butter into them thoroughly before applying soap.

How to Avoid Appendicitis

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Foley's Orino Laxative cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels and restores the natural action of the bowels. Foley's Orino Laxative does not nauseate or grip and is mild and pleasant to take. Rubuse substitutes. Ed. D. Heckerman.

JOHN C. GEYER

A Tribute From a Friend of His Youth

The subject of this notice was a native of Bedford County, being born in Juniata Township, near New Buena Vista. He was a close student and soon began teaching to secure the means necessary to pursue his studies elsewhere. He attended the Rainsburg Academy one term under the supervision of Prof. Osborne, one term of six weeks at Bedford under Prof. A. N. Raub, who taught in what is now the centre of the union school building, and taught during those intervals in the public schools of the county.

When the Civil War broke out, like many others he did not care to abandon the great desire of acquiring an advanced education, thinking it would not be greatly prolonged, but it soon became apparent that this was not the case. He packed away his books, enlisted in Co. H, 55th Regt. Pa. Vol., on the 22nd of September, 1862, and soon thereafter joined the regiment at Beaufort, S. C. He was as faithful in the discharge of his duties as soldier as he was industrious and arduous in pursuit of his studies before his enlistment. He was a model soldier, and won the friendship of his comrades and the esteem of his officers.

Mr. Geyer was promoted to Commissary Sergeant of the regiment and was diligent in his duties in that capacity; he was soon thereafter promoted to Sergeant Major. At the battle of Chapin's Ford and the assault of Battery Johnson, in 1864, by his gallantry on the field he won a First Lieutenant's commission, and was detailed as Adjutant of the regiment, which position he held during the remainder of his service. His conduct on the field during the closing campaign won the commendation of his superiors in rank. He was greatly esteemed by Maj. George H. Hill who commanded the regiment; the approbation of Major Hill was something which anyone might be proud to obtain, for he (Hill) may truly be said to have been one of the "brave among the bravest."

After the surrender the regiment went into camp near Richmond, Va., and Lieut. Geyer, being anxious to return to civil life and renew his studies, tendered his resignation, which was accepted. After his return he became a student at the Millersville State Normal School and became attached to the faculty before leaving the institution. Like many others he went west, located in Missouri and engaged in teaching, subsequently studied law, and followed that profession in Neosho, Newton County, until his health compelled him to retire from practice a short time prior to his death.

In life he was one of Nature's true noblemen, exemplifying the saying that "man is the noblest work of God." He was truly a gentleman; a fast and true friend. Himself being honest and upright, he appreciated those qualities in whomsoever he found them. His friendship was worthy of being coveted and being proud of when won. He was not only a friend socially, but "a friend in need." His life was an exemplary and useful one, and, above all, he was, as far as mortal can judge, a true Christian; and, as a minister once said, "His death was but closing his eyes on earth to open them in Heaven." Cured Hay Fever and Summer Cold

A. S. Nussbaum, Batesville, Indiana, writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has since used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Ed. D. Heckerman.

New Sleeves

Long, tight-fitting sleeves are about the only ones that we shall undoubtedly be wearing as soon as the next season's styles settle down. At present they are appearing in gowns made for the remaining summer. But, as if to ameliorate the added burden the lengthened arm covering, they are made, in nine cases out of ten, of net or some sort of gauze. Many of the best gowns have the sleeves wrinkled, with the little frill on the outside of the arm.

LEGEND OF THE NARCISSUS

Story of the Beautiful Nymph Echo. Unrequited Love.

At this season of the year, when the spell of nature is strong upon all and every moment that can be spared from other things is spent among the beauties she has spread over the earth, the sad story of Echo and Narcissus is of special interest.

It is related that away back in those centuries when the gods inhabited Mount Olympus there was a beautiful and sprightly nymph whose name was Echo. She was fond of the woods and hills, but she chattered, chattered all day long, and no matter what the argument she would have the last word. To punish her for some merry prank played upon her angry Juno took from her the power of speech except for reply. She gave her the last word which she always wanted, but denied her the first. One day Echo saw Narcissus as he pursued the chase. He was a youth of extraordinary beauty and Echo loved him at once and followed him. She longed to speak to him but could not. At length separated from his companions, Narcissus shouted aloud, "Who's here?" Echo answered "Here." The conversation thus begun was carried auspiciously forward till Echo, overjoyed, was about to throw herself into the arms of Narcissus, but he repelled her and left her. Poor Echo pined away among the mountain cliffs. Her bones were changed into rocks and nothing was left of her but her voice, which still haunts rocky summits.

This was not the only cruelty of Narcissus. He spurned all alike until these nymphs prayed to Nemesis to avenge them by causing him some day to experience the pain of loving and receiving no return. This prayer was granted. Wearying at his sport, soon after, Narcissus threw himself down beside a mountain spring, clear as a crystal and undefaced by fallen leaves. Stooping to drink he saw his own image reflected in the water, but thought it some water spirit. He remained gazing upon it and fell in love with his own reflection. He called to it but it would not answer. He plunged into the water, but it disappeared. He would not leave the spring, but hung over it, driving away the beautiful image with his tears. He lost his color and his beauty, he faded and died. The nymphs mourned him and when they smote their breasts Echo smote hers. They built a funeral pyre for him, but when they came to get his body it was not there, but in its place a flower grew such as they had never seen before and in memory of him they called it Narcissus.

Every American citizen will want to keep in touch with the campaign as it progresses. The Philadelphia Press, the great, reliable, metropolitan daily, will publish the campaign news completely and accurately and will keep you posted up to the minute. To Make Cucumber Juice

One of the best cosmetics for the skin is cucumber juice. Press the liquor from two or three freshly cut cucumbers by means of pestle and mortar. Peel off the skin and cut the cucumber into small pieces about the size of dice. The juice will be more easily obtained. Bathe the face with it two or three times a day. It is a wonderful whitener and cleanser. Buttermilk is another harmless cosmetic and is especially valuable in case of sunburn. Distilled rosewater is a refreshing wash for the face during warm weather.

"OUR PRESIDENT"

Written in March 1907 After an Appeal for a National Hymn by Spillman Riggs.

"My country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of Liberty,
Of thee I sing,
Land where my fathers died,
Land of the Pilgrim's pride,
From every mountain side,
Let Freedom ring!"

How our very hearts thrill when we read or sing the above lines! How the patriotic spirit swells within us! To have a country such as ours, and to enjoy such liberties that are accorded us, and not to respond with enthusiasm, would be treason.

As introspection benefits us as individuals, circumspection is equally important as a nation. While we boast of our land, our freedom, our rocks and rills, what word or thought have we for the head of our glorious nation—our President? He is of the people, chosen by the people, for the people, and why should not the people sing to him? How splendid it would be to forget party distinction, forget personal prejudices, petty likes and dislikes, and remember we have a head, a representative who is endeavoring to the best of his ability to serve the people. Would it not be an inspiration to him to know that he held the confidence, love, and respect of his people? Would he not have more interest in their affairs if he knew his efforts were appreciated, and that not one heart but beat in sympathy with his?

Every cloud has its silver lining, every life its redeeming qualities, and every President is worthy to be loved. Could we not lay aside our enmities, our criticisms; forget the bad, remembering only the good, and sing with spirit the following lines:

God save our President,
Shall be our heartfelt prayer;
Make him pure, good and true,
And free from every care.
He is the man the nation loves,
It chose him for its head;
May the hand that sways the land
Not be a hand of lead.

God protect our President,
Shall be the Nation's cry,
From every evil-minded man
Who would his thoughts apply.
Surround him with good counselors
Who assist in affairs of state;
And in a matter of right and wrong,
May he never hesitate.

God bless our President,
Shall be our earnest plea;
No matter what his politics
It's all the same to thee.
All honor is giv'n his manly traits,
Infuse him with Thy might;
And he shall be to America
A shining, resplendent light!

Excellent Health Advice

Mrs. M. M. Davison of No. 379 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c

MODESTY

Modesty is supposed to have come over in the Mayflower, along with the story of Rebecca at the Well. Since then Boston has become psychological and modesty has a subliminal self.

There is a tradition that modesty once lived in New York, but this has never been proved. It is highly improbable, especially as New York has always had a smart set.

Modesty was a visitor at the White House during the Civil War and shortly before. Since then she has received no further invitation. If modesty should appear there now, Heaven would doubtless be too timid to extend a helping hand.

Modesty, indeed, is a recluse. Her pew in church has been given up. She never had a box at the opera. She would not dare be operated upon in any hospital. The children would disconcert her in any home. With no roof to shelter her, no nourishment to sustain her, she walks the untrodden paths, a miserable and disconcerted thing of the past.—Lippincott's.

How Snakes Hear

Snakes have no external ears, but inside the head the ear bones are very crude. Snakes "hear," however, says St. Nicholas, by feeling vibration of sound on their delicate and scaly covering and searching for sound vibrations by protruding the wonderfully sensitive tongue, which is filled with thousands of microscopic nerves. Their sight is very keen in distinguishing moving objects.

No one is immune from kidney trouble, so just remember that Foley's Kidney Remedy will stop the irregularities and cure any case of kidney or bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with overwork. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," snawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "water brash," "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to it. Use and you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret medicine of known composition.

FILLS THE BILL

The Philadelphia Record Actively Supports Bryan.

A Presidential contest that will undoubtedly be waged with unwonted vigor on both sides of the line dividing the great national parties is now in full swing. Politics will be the principal topic of discussion wherever men congregate until the claims of the rival candidates shall be settled at the ballot-box in November. It goes without saying that accurate information of all the important moves on the campaign chess-board will be indispensable to every wide-awake voter.

Democrats turn naturally to The Philadelphia Record for such information. It is the only Democratic newspaper in Philadelphia recognized the country over as one of the leading exponents of Democratic opinion on this edge of the continent. It is fair, though partisan; it chronicles the telling blow, no matter who is hit. Suppression and misrepresentation are weapons that have no place in its armory. "Square deal" Democrats and Republicans will find the daily budget of The Record essential to an intelligent understanding of the progress of a lively Presidential canvass.

No newspaper ever achieved popularity on the strength of its political attitude alone. The Philadelphia Record is no exception to the rule. It is lifted above the common level by many distinctive features that appeal to the varied interests of every member of the household. It prints the news—all the news—in a concise, brisk form that has come to be known, even among its contemporaries, as "Record style." A proper sense of perspective dictates its thorough presentation of happenings in its own immediate field—Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. Its editorial treatment of the questions of the day is at once well-balanced and aggressive.

The Philadelphia Record exploits no fads and rides no hobbies, but it is preeminent in its special departments. It is the recognized authority in the field of sports and the turf. Farmers and shippers swear by its market reports, which are always complete, accurate and wholly reliable. To the practical man its columns of popularized science are entertaining and helpful; the practical woman finds the matters that lie nearest to her heart treated amply—and sanely—in a department devoted to the home, dress and the world of feminine achievement. There is a corner in The Record for boys and girls; a weekly column of condensed, up-to-date information for the farmer; a daily bouquet of breezy anecdotes—"The Reporter's Nosegay"—so good that they are clipped and reprinted by newspaper editors throughout the country.

If you want a clean newspaper, worthy to occupy an honored place in the home circle—

If you want a live newspaper, without a streak of yellow in its make-up—

If you want a stalwart Democratic newspaper that will keep you thoroughly posted on every phase of a stirring national campaign—

If you want a family newspaper the profit and pleasure of reading which will be shared by others, no matter how diverse their tastes and inclinations—

You want The Philadelphia Record. It is the only paper that fills the bill.

The Philadelphia Record will be mailed to your address at the following rates: Daily (including Sunday), per year, $4.50; every week day, per year, $3; Sunday Record, per year, $1.50.

The Stylish Woman

It may be better "to be stylish than handsome," but one must first learn to define style.

It is not wearing what other people wear, whether it suits you or not.

It is not wearing incongruous or unsuitable costumes just because they are the rage.

It is not being overdressed or conspicuous or always sporting the latest novelty.

It is not wearing clothes that cost a small fortune. Taste and knowledge of what suits you outweigh dollars when it comes to style.

It is selecting things that are becoming and individual, seeing that they are always kept in immaculate condition and carrying oneself so as to show them to the best advantage.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research, by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. ## THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 23, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xx, 30-42. Memory Verse, 42—Golden Text, Prov. xvii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.)

At the beginning of last week's lesson we referred briefly to the love of Jonathan and David as set forth in xviii, 1-4, and now we follow on to consider the love of God and of Jonathan and the murderous hatred of Saul. The great murderer is ever seeking to kill, but the great and only life-giver is not only ever giving life, and life abundantly, but He is ever preserving and caring for the life which He gives. When Saul instructed Jonathan and all his servants to kill David, Jonathan so reasoned and pleaded that his father said, "As the Lord liveth, he shall not be slain" (xix, 1-6). But no reliance can be placed on a man possessed by such an evil spirit, and soon we read that Saul sought to smite David to the wall with his javelin and then sent messengers to slay him in his own house, but David escaped and went to Samuel, and he and Samuel went to dwell at Naioth (xix, 7-24). From thence David returned to interview Jonathan and said to him, "Truly, as the Lord liveth and as thy soul liveth, there is but a step between me and death" (xx, 3), for so it seemed as long as he was within reach of Saul. Jonathan could not believe this of his father, so they fell upon a plan to ascertain truly the purpose of Saul toward David. When, shortly after this, Saul attempted to kill Jonathan also because he took David's part, then Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David, and he communicated the same to David by means of the lad and the arrows as recorded in chapter xx, 30-42, our special lesson for today. One cannot but think of the purpose of the Jews to kill Jesus and of how He escaped out of their hand again and again until in the eternal purpose of God the time came when they were permitted to do that which His hand and counsel had resolved before to be done (Acts iv, 28).

The death of David at the hands of Saul was not in the plan and purpose of God, however much it may have seemed so at times. We may not know always just what His purpose for us is, but He will make it plain, and we may be quite sure that if we are abiding in Him nothing that is not in His plan for us can ever reach us and all that is in His plan surely will. We may learn to live in God and find in Him always a home of peace and rest. This is our privilege, though few seem to attain to it. See the heart of Jonathan in verse 34. He did not care for himself nor grieve because of his father's treatment of him, but "he was grieved for David because his father had done him shame." Saul's treatment of his son was also his treatment of David, for Jonathan stood for David. When Paul sent Onesimus home to his former master, Philemon, he said in his letter, "Receive him as myself, and if he oweeth thee ought put it to my account." So the Lord Jesus makes us one with Himself, and whoever or whatever touches one of His touches Himself. Therefore He said to Saul when persecuting the Christians, "Why persecutest thou Me?" He said concerning Israel in Zech. ii, 8, "He that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye."

See the love of Jonathan and David in their parting after the lad had returned home (verse 4). "They kissed one another and wept one with another till David exceeded." Joseph thus wept not only over Benjamin, but over all his brethren as he forgave them and took them to his heart to love them and care for them and nourish them and their little ones. Does Jesus love us thus? For we think that we could trust and rest in love like that. Listen to His own word, "As the Father hath loved Me so have I loved you; continue ye in My love" (John xv, 9). How slow we are to believe it! The wondrous love of these two, David and Jonathan, is seen on a later occasion when Jonathan went to David and strengthened his love in the cave and said to him, "I fear not for the hand of Saul, my father shall not find thee, and thou shalt be king over Israel, and I shall be next unto thee" (chapter xxiii, 16, 17). There seems to be not a particle of self in Jonathan, his desire being all for David and his welfare.

But what shall we say concerning the love of the Son of God to us, who, though He was rich, for our sakes became poor that we through His poverty might become rich? (II Cor. viii, 9). He laid aside all His glory which He had with the Father before the world was and became one of us, taking our nature and suffering for them in our stead, that we might in due time be lifted up to His place and share His kingdom and glory. How can we refrain from telling it and living to make it known to those who never heard? As we live it and tell it we are somewhat like Jonathan's lad—we know not anything as to what we are accomplishing (verse 39), but the Lord knows, and He has assured us that His word will never return to Him void, and He will bring over it to perform it (Isa. lv, 11; Jer. i, 12, R. V.). It is safe for us to obey and trust Him to work out His own good purpose. "Willing and obedient" (Isa. i, 19) should be our motto.

You may have noticed that hard cash is hard to acquire.

Many a man who is sure he is right lacks the energy to go ahead.

Men who drink to drown their sorrows face misfortune with a smile.

A girl's idea of a ringleader is the first man to arrive with a solitaire.

Many a man refuses to listen to reason because he can see no reason for it.

A woman isn't necessarily in love with a man because she is jealous of him.

If Congressman Reynolds has the best interests of the farmers at heart he should intercede in their behalf with the Weather Bureau; his local papers would have us believe he can "work" all other departments of the government.

The friends of Congressman John M. Reynolds are fearful that the second harvest will not be gathered from the seeds he sent out from Washington last spring—at the expense of the government—because of the lack of rain. As to the third harvest, it is now certain that he will not reap expected results in November—especially in this county.

THE VALUE OF VACATIONS

The human mechanism has its limitations; and, passing the limit-line of safety, thousands of those engaged in professional and commercial pursuits wreck their nervous systems or in other ways bring upon themselves a heavy burden for the remainder of their days, either because of greed or of ignorance of the laws under which the human machine performs its functions. It is a commercialistic age and men, and women too, are madly rushing for the acquisition of money and property which can bring but little of pleasure to one whose health has been lost or impaired in the mad rush necessary to its attainment.

The human organism, like any of the great machines of modern invention, will do its best work only when cared for and kept in good condition. Sleep is the greatest panacea known to materia medica, but the loss brought about by the long hours devoted, either by choice or by necessity, to business concerns or to manual labor, is too great to be repaired during the few hours usually devoted to it, hence the necessity for "days off," holidays and—vacations. It is the universal testimony of the employers of clerks, stenographers, etc., that it pays to give vacations, even from a financial standpoint, because of the increased power to perform the daily duties that comes from the consecutive days of rest to body and freedom of mind.

"Vacations," says a writer in a recent scientific magazine, "result in increased power to perform either mental or manual labor, in more happiness in the home and in living out the allotted term of years which otherwise would be, and too often is, materially shortened." "Close and long-continued application in the minister's study, at the lawyer's, in the doctor's office, is a fruitful cause of nervous prostration," says the same author, but it was not the intention of that eminent writer to leave the impression that these are the only lines in which men are overworked. The cook in the kitchen, the clerk in the store, the man who follows the plow—in short, all who labor with mind or hand are effected in the same manner.

But there is another phase other than the materialistic one above pointed out. The vacation period enables the one "let loose" to follow his or her own inclinations. The man tied in a narrow sphere may "rub up against the world" and study his fellowmen with broader vision; the man tied to his office in city or town may pitch his tent on the grassy bank of some country stream and, surrounded by nature, tempt the speckled trout, or lie in wait for the wily squirrel, or drift noiselessly with the current in his bark canoe or improvised raft of unhewn logs. By thus following one's own inclinations comes that pleasure and enjoyment to which all are entitled, but which is too frequently denied in this money-getting, commercialistic age.

Facts About Personal Registration

BEDFORD AGAIN VICTORIOUS

Champions Defeated Last Friday by the "Aggregation."

Well! Well! Well! that championship Everett Baseball Club was here on Friday, August 14, and the "aggregation from Bedford wearing Bedford uniforms," as our boys were written up in the Everett papers, defeated them in an 11-inning contest, the score being 8 to 7 in favor of the so-called aggregation.

Of course, the Everett club will say that they were cheated out of the game, as they did say before this game that out of the last seven games played, they were cheated out of five of them—they having only won two. In their estimation, when Everett plays a game of ball and doesn't win then the other club has hoodooed them out of the game by foul means.

Oh, that's a great bunch from Everett! Kick, kick, kick, is all they seem to think of. They call the umpire a robber; in fact, every one is a robber when the Everett team is not given all it kicks for, but with all their kicking they were just one run short at the end of the game—and Bedford won.

This makes the fourth game between the local team and the Everett nine, each team having two games to their credit.

Bedford's pitcher, Clyde Diehl, pitched another strong game, striking out eleven of Everett's batsmen, and was strong at the finish. In the eleventh inning he struck out two of Everett's best batsmen. Everett's pitcher, Marean, too, pitched good ball, but Bedford hit at the right time and took advantage of everything. In the field they pulled off some sensational plays; this was particularly true of the infield and all the spectators on the grounds were very much pleased with the game. The score follows:

Baseball Notes

Mt. Union defeated the Everett ball team at the fair grounds in Huntingdon last Wednesday, score 7-3.

The Everett team won from Saxton at Riverside Park on Wednesday in a splendidly played game—score 3-2.

At Saxton last Saturday Riddlesburg forfeited the game in the fifth. The visitors were dissatisfied with the decisions of the umpire, who was their choice, and gave up when the score was something like 10-4 against them and Saxton had eleven hits off their pitcher.

The Riddlesburg club on Tuesday challenged the Saxton club to pay a game at Bedford for a purse of $25 and gate receipts. The latter decided the amount was too small and raised it to $50, the winners take 60 per cent. of the receipts after the expenses were paid, and all players to be residents of the respective towns at least sixty days previous to the game. The result of the deliberations is looked forward to with interest.

Questions in Arithmetic

Here's one for your boys: If the painting costs two or three times as much as the paint, and one paint goes twice as far as another, how much are those two paints worth?

If Devoc is worth $1.50 or $1.75 a gallon, how much is the other one worth?

How much is a gallon of paint worth anyhow?

The answer is: Depends on the paint.

The reason is: paint isn't always paint. There are true and false paint and short-measure.

How much is a short-measure gallon worth? How much is false paint worth? How much is Devoc worth?

There are millions a year in the answer to this last one.

Melzer Hardware and House Furnishing Company.

Dr. J. N. Helman, the well-known Pittsburg eye-sight specialist, will be in Bedford at the Bedford House three days next week, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 26 to 28. Next visit in October. See ad elsewhere.

FIRST ELECTRIC MESSAGE

Received at Bedford Springs Fifty Years Ago.

Last Sunday, August 16, marked the fiftieth anniversary of the sending of the first electric message across the Atlantic. President James Buchanan, then a guest at the Bedford Springs Hotel, received the following cable from Queen Victoria:

"Valencia, Ireland, via Trinity Bay, N. F., Aug. 16, 1858.

"To the Honorable, the President of the United States:

"The Queen desires to congratulate the President upon the successful issue of this great international undertaking, in which the Queen has taken the deepest interest.

"The Queen is convinced the President will join with her in fervently hoping that the electric cable which now connects Great Britain with the United States will prove an additional link between nations whose friendship is founded upon common interest and reciprocal esteem.

"The Queen has much pleasure in thus communicating with the President, and renewing to him her wishes for the prosperity of the United States.

The news caused great rejoicing, especially in Stockbridge where Mr. Field's family was, and in New York City where the event was celebrated in various ways. An electric sign displayed at the Manhattan Hotel read: "Married—August 1858 by Cyrus W. Field, Old Ireland and Young America. 'May their honeymoon last forever.'"

The world should never forget its debt to the pioneers like Cyrus W. Field, the young man who saw a vision and made it come true—to the lasting benefit of all mankind.

Among the many guests now sojourning at Bedford Springs are perhaps two score or more who distinctly recall the wide spread interest occasioned by the laying of the first Atlantic cable and the inaugural message of formal greeting from Queen Victoria to President Buchanan. The message itself, reproduced as a preface to the menu for Sunday's dinner, was a general theme of reminiscent discussion.

Meeting of Fruit Growers

The Fruit Growers' Association of Bedford County will hold a meeting on August 29 in the Court House and a good attendance is desired, especially of the members. The meeting should begin promptly at 2 p. m. and let every one be there. Fruit growers must look after themselves and their rights, as no one else will. It is becoming harder every year to grow first-class fruit; more work must be given the trees but the proper time, material, and methods must be practiced if you are to do that economically. The association was organized for the purpose of helping one another along the various lines of up-to-date methods. Every one interested is invited to attend these meetings, join our ranks and take part in making Bedford County one of the greatest fruit-growing counties in this state.

DECISION ON ROAD LAW

Non-Resident Not Liable for One Dollar Per Capita Tax.

Judge Walling of Erie County in a decision reported in District Reports of May, commenting on Section 2, Act of April 12, 1905, which reads "That upon every taxable the road Supervisors of each township shall assess the sum of one dollar in addition to the millage tax above mentioned," says, "The question by the case is, does that provision apply to a non-resident who owns property in the township? In our opinion it does not. It is not levied upon the property but against the person in the nature of a poll tax. The taxing power of a township cannot be extended so as to embrace a personal tax against a non-resident. A personal tax can be levied only at the place of residence. A person is not liable to a poll tax in more than one place and that is at his place of residence."

Clever Women

A writer gives the following definitions of a clever woman:

A clever woman is one who looks well after the ways of her own household.

A clever woman is one who undertakes nothing that she does not understand.

A clever woman is one who is mistress of tact and knows how to make the social wheels run smoothly and well.

A clever woman is one who makes the other woman think herself the cleverest.

A clever woman is one whose ability is never unpleasantly felt by the rest of the world.

A clever woman is one who acknowledges her neighbor's right to live, who doesn't believe that she alone is the motive power of the world.

He is the Richest Man

In whose possessions others feel richest.

Who can enjoy a landscape without owning the land.

Who absorbs the best in the world in which he lives, and who gives the best of himself to others.

Who has a strong, robust constitution.

Who has a hearty appreciation of the beautiful in nature.

Who enjoys access to the masterpieces of art, science and literature.

Who has a mind liberally stored and contented.

Who can face poverty and misfortune with cheerfulness and courage.

Who values a good name above gold.

For whom plain living, rich thought and grand effort constitute real riches—Success Magazine.

THE OCEAN.

ROLL on, thou deep and dark blue ocean—roll!
Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain;
Man marks the earth with ruin:
His control
Stops with the shore. Upon the watery plain
The wrecks are all thy deed, nor doth remain
A shadow of man's ravage save his own
When for a moment, like a drop of rain,
He sinks into thy depths with bubbling groan,
Without a grave, unknelled, uncoffined and unknown.

Thou glorious mirror, where the Almighty's form
Glasses itself in tempests, in all time—
Calm or convulsed in breeze or gale or storm,
Icing the pole or in the torrid clime
Dark, heaving—boundless, endless and sublime.

The image of eternity, the throne
Of the Invisible, even from out thy slime
The monsters of the deep are made; each zone
Obeys thee. Thou goest forth, dread,
Fathomless, alone.

And I have loved thee, ocean, and my joy
Of youthful sports was on thy breast to be Borne, like thy bubbles, onward. From a boy
I wonted with thy breakers. They to me
Were a delight, and if the freshening sea
Made them a terror 'twas a pleasing fear.
For I was, as it were, a child of thee
And trusted to the billows far and near
And laid my hand upon thy mane, as I do here.

—Lord Byron

KATHLEEN MAVOURNEEN.

KATHLEEN MAVOURNEEN, the gray dawn is breaking.
The horn of the hunter is heard on the hill.
The lark from her light wing the night dew is shaking.

Kathleen Mavourneen, what, slumbering still?

Oh, hast thou forgotten how soon we must sever?

Oh, hast thou forgotten this day we must part?

It may be for years, and it may be for ever!

Oh, why art thou silent, thou voice of my heart?

Kathleen Mavourneen, awake from thy slumbers.

The blue mountains glow in the sun's golden light.

Ah, where is the spell that once hung on thy numbers?

Arise in thy beauty, thou star of my night.

Mavourneen, Mavourneen, my sad tears are falling

To think that from Erin and thee I must part!

It may be for years, and it may be for ever!

Then why art thou silent, thou voice of my heart?

—Mrs. Crawford.

THE AMULET.

YOUR picture smiles as first it smiled;
The ring you gave is still the same;
Your letter tells, O changing child,
No tidings since it came!

GIVE me an amulet
That keeps intelligence with you—
Red when you love, and rosier red,
And when you love not, pale and blue.

ALAS, that neither bonds nor vows
Can certify possession!
Tortures me still the fear that love
Died in its last expression.

—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

MEMORY.

MY mind lets go a thousand things.
Like dates of wars and deaths
Of kings.

And yet recalls the very hour—
'Twas noon by yonder village tower.

And on the last blue noon in May—
The wind came briskly up this way,
Crisping the brook beside the road;
Then, pausing here, set down its load
Of pine scents and shook listlessly
Two petals from that wild rose tree.

—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

The Bite of a Dog.

"I want to say a few words about hydrophobia," said a physician. "When an animal bites through clothing there is little or no danger of infection. The virus is on the teeth of the animal and when the person bitten has received the wound through a layer of clothing there is little danger.

"The virus on the teeth is left in the clothing and is not communicated to the person bitten. Rabid dogs or other animals are not like reptiles. They have no hollow teeth through which poison may be communicated. It must be introduced directly into the system of the victim.

"Therefore, when a supposedly rabid dog bites a person, if the bite is not on an exposed part of the body he should have no fear."—Washington Post.

A careful horseman knows by experience that it is the firm and well fitting, rather than the ill-shapen, padded collar, that is easiest on the horses' shoulders. As a rule it is the cheap collar that does not fit and has to be padded.

The official government crop report for July shows that the tobacco acreage for the current year is 763,000 acres, or 55,000 acres less than last year. In the case of flax the acreage is estimated at 2,637,000 acres, which is 7.2 per cent, or 207,000 acres, less than last year.

The present year goes on record as one in which white clover has grown luxuriantly and abundantly. Whether this fact is due entirely to favorable winter conditions or to these coupled with abundant moisture cannot be stated. In any event, there is lots of it, which is a cause of rejoicing on the part of live stock and bees and will mean extra dollars in the farmer's and beekeeper's pocket.

Careful investigations by the department of agriculture in southern cotton growing states show a considerable and very satisfactory decrease in the numbers 'of the cotton boll weevil, which is by all odds the worst pest that the growers of this great staple have to contend with. While the decrease in number of the insects may be due in part to causes not known, a considerable portion of the change is thought to be due to the unfavorable weather last fall, especially to the early killing frost.

The total value of the olive crop for Greece in the year 1907 is reported to have been $12,000,000.

In the light of present day forestry agitation the title of the poem which we used to recite when children in school, "Woodman, Spare That Tree," has a good deal more meaning than it did at the time the author penned it.

The pall or barrel on which hoops have burst and which threatens to fall to pieces may be rendered serviceable by the use of homemade wire hoops. These should be measured, cut to the desired length, the ends twisted fast and then driven on tight.

It is a pretty good index of the kind of farmer a fellow is if he wants to keep the manure pile at the smallest size possible and doesn't care a bit when it is spread on the land. Usually such fellows have a grudge against the fate that attends them and lam baste the existing political and economic order.

A friend of the writer who is this year working his 400 acre farm with out other help than that of his own wife, boys and girls is wisely following the plan of giving them an outing varies the monotony of the hard work whenever the opportunity offers. This they are doing and likewise makes them feel that their efforts are appreciated. This is a plan that might be followed to advantage by more farm owners.

It is said that at Cheshire, Conn. stands an apple tree which is known to be 190 years old and is believed to be still older than this. The tree is about seventy feet high, while the trunk has a circumference of seven feet and a half feet near the base. There are eight large branches, five of which bear fruit one year and the other three the next. One year this giant tree bore 130 bushels of apples. The tree is regular in form, and the area shaded by its branches is 130 feet in diameter.

Chicken lice, like weeds, flourish in warm weather. For this reason the poultry, especially that kept in confinement, should be provided with boxes containing dust, sulphur and wood ashes, while the henhouse, nests and roosts should be given frequent applications of whitewash and coal oil and be frequently disinfected with sulphur fumes. Sickly and ailing chicks as well as dumpy and unprofitable flocks of hens are often the direct result of these louse and mite pests. During the present season we have noted localities where hundreds of chicks were killed off by them as if it were by a pestilence.

Apple growers in the vicinity of New Haven entertain serious fears of a failure of their crop because of the ravages of a leaf eating worm which has lately put in an appearance in that section. The worm is reported to be of a yellowish green color and about a quarter of an inch in length. Leaves attacked by the pest look like sieves, and there are a number of orchards in which hardly a whole leaf remains. Specimens of the worm, together with leaves attacked, have been sent to the state experiment station in the hope that some remedy may be forthcoming. The worms seem to spread with great rapidity, and unless some treatment can be applied to check them it would seem to require but a few weeks for the complete destruction of the apple crop in all orchards where they have been at work.

A wide awake high school in a Minnesota town has purchased a ten acre tract of land in the vicinity which is being handled this season as a fruit and vegetable patch. If this garden is cultivated as it ought to be during the summer months, the young folks who tend it will not only be kept out of mischief, but will have nice sums of spending money when fall comes. In many other sections, owing to a scarcity of farm help, boys between the ages of ten and seventeen years have been able to secure employment as paying wages on nearby farms. While there are doubtless certain economic conditions under which immature boys and girls may have too much work for their own good, there is little question that most of them living in the rural communities suffer more because they don't have enough for their best and truest development. The example set by this Minnesota school ought to be followed with profit by others.

A reader of these notes who lives in Indianapolis, Ind., and who in past years has been successful in the growing of asters writes that this year when his plants reached five or six inches in height they withered and died without any cause that was discernible from a careful inspection, and he inquires what the cause of the trouble may be. While the condition of the plants described may be the result of an overfertilizing of the soil with some commercial product, it is more likely to be the result of the work of the stalk borer, which seems to attack without partiality pigweed, ragweed, corn, tomato and potato vines, asters, salvias and other stalky plants. This pest is hard to combat because it works entirely on the inside of the stalk. While it would not remedy the difficulty entirely, it would be a help to root up and burn plants which have been attacked and ruined as well as to hoe out from the bed all weeds in which the worms would be likely to work. Had the damage to the asters been reported early in June it might have been due to the work of the white grub, which later changes into the June bug, but this would hardly be a possibility five or six weeks later.

MIDSUMMER NEGLIGEE.

WOMEN like dainty dressing sacks that are loose fitting so that they give perfect freedom to the figure, yet at the same time they must be made in such a way that they are becoming. No prettier design for a negligee has been seen for a long time than the sack shown in the accompanying illustration. Embroidery and lace play an important part in charming combinations may be wrought of figured and plain materials, and the combination may be of wool and silk or of silk and cotton.

The sleeves can be finished in either flowing or bishop style, but if the cuff is used it should be made to correspond with the collar. The fullness at the waist line is confined by a belt.

A pale blue silk trimmed with cluny insertion is a pretty combination. The fullness at the waist line can be adjusted and held in place by a strip of the insertion stitched on both edges and the material cut from underneath. The wide collar can be trimmed with a row of insertion, placed the width of the insertion from the edge. The sleeves can be gathered into a cuff of the insertion, and a bow of black velvet will give the collar a pretty finish at the throat.

A white silk with a rose pattern in blue and trimming bands of blue to match is another pretty combination. A plain nun's veil or albatross with a collar of flowered silk makes a dainty sack for cool days. Soutache braid is also effective used as a trimming on plain materials of delicate shades and can be of the same or a contrasting color. This tucked sack is cut in seven sizes—from 32 to 44 inches bust measure. To copy this sack for the average person it requires 3 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide or 3 3/4 yards 36 inches wide.

Any reader of this paper who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 4234, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.

RECIPES

Sliced Cucumber Pickle—Slice 12 large green cucumbers and boil them in vinegar for an hour. Put aside in the vinegar and prepare a further pickle as follows: Allow a half-tablespoonful each of sliced garlic, grated horse-radish, tumeric, ground black pepper, ginger, cinnamon and celery seed, a teaspoonful each of ground cloves, allspice and mace, and a half-pound of sugar to each half-gallon of vinegar; put in the cucumbers and simmer for two hours. Take from the fire and put into jars.

Green Tomato Pickle—Slice without peeling four quarts of green tomatoes; peel and slice a quart of onions and put with these two cupfuls of sugar, a quart of vinegar, a tablespoonful each of salt, ground mustard and black pepper, and half a tablespoonful each of allspice and cloves. Put over the fire and stew until the vegetables are tender, watching carefully that the mixture does not scorch. This will be fit for eating in about two months—Delineator.

Honey Jelly—Take the parings of one-half peck apples, wash well and set to boil in four quarts of water and let boil two hours. Then strain through a cloth, after which you take one cup of sugar to each cup of juice. Let boil one and a half hours.

Fruit at Meals

Fruits raw or cooked may be eaten at dinner, provided no vegetables (unless it be potatoes) are taken. But if raw, they should be eaten first, particularly if there are warm foods to follow. Some persons cannot digest certain kinds of raw fruit for supper, or late in the day; let them take these on sitting down to the breakfast table, or the first thing at dinner, unless there are vegetables at this meal.

Persons with feeble digestion should, as a rule, confine themselves to a single kind of fruit at a meal; they can make the changes from one meal to another. Those who find it difficult to digest vegetables should not attempt more than one kind at a given meal until the digestion is improved, and often it is best to leave them off entirely for a time.

The White Elephant.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Marian Standish found it in the park one bright June morning. Of course it was not the sort of elephant that ambles dustily along in the circus procession. On the contrary, it was carved from a bit of ivory with some needlelike tools and girdled about with a narrow band of gold terminating in a small ring.

"A fob charm, and I wish I could keep it," she exclaimed covetously as she examined the delicate workmanship of the toy, which was no larger than the end of her thumb. She looked about as she continued her stroll down the green arboreal path. Save for the usual aggregation of nursemaids and their young charges the park seemed deserted at this point.

Far away on a distant intersecting path a man's tall figure appeared for an instant and then vanished among the trees. Miss Standish breathed a sigh of relief as she slipped the ivory elephant into her pocketbook.

"I will watch the papers, and if it is advertised of course I shall return it. I suppose I ought to advertise it myself. Well, I will, and in the meantime I will enjoy its possession. It is the dearest thing!"

The next morning Miss Standish scanned the papers with interest. The first one she threw aside with satisfaction, the second with elation, but the third sheet contained the dreaded inquiry:

Lost in Central park on the morning of June 15 a small ivory elephant fob charm. Initials "J. M. B." on gold band. Finder will please communicate with J. M. Beckwith, Block Building, City, and receive liberal reward.

The white elephant stood meekly on her dressing table. Marian picked it up and examined it curiously. Three tiny initials which had escaped her attention the day before were scratched upon the gold band. She also discovered that the eyes were emerald sparks and the miniature tusks were tipped with gold.

"You are too pretty to hang on a man's watch fob," she sighed discontentedly. There was a slight rattle as she laid it down, and she lifted it again and shook it briskly. There was something inside that clicked, and the knowledge that the bit of carving was not only hollow, but was evidently the receptacle of some delightful mystery was an added vexation now that she must lose it.

There was something vaguely familiar about the name of Beckwith. It seemed to conjure up visions of East Indian islands, palm fringed shores, the smell of wild jasmine and the fragrance of cassia and other spices, yet she had never been there, but she had read—where was it?

Marian Standish was the soul of honesty, but she could not resist the temptation to retain possession of the charm for another day. So she conscientiously cut out the advertisement and tucked it away in her writing desk, assuring herself that she would communicate with the owner that very evening.

She attached the charm to her own small watch fob and, thrusting the gold timepiece in her belt, set out for her morning walk, accompanied by that prize winning bulldog, Pedro, who was as hideous as his mistress was beautiful.

In due course of time they reached the park and eventually entered the same arboreal path where she had found the white elephant. Walking slowly toward her was a very tall young man, who was studying the ground attentively as he advanced.

Marian blushed guiltily, and her hand flew to the white charm swinging conspicuously against the black of her skirt, and it seemed that the stranger saw it, too, for, with a quick glance at her and beyond, his good looking face brightened with sudden interest. He removed his hat and paused.

"I beg your pardon, madam, but"—he was beginning when her chilling glance stopped the words on his lips.

"Sir!" said Miss Standish haughtily, and she swept past him, dragging the leashed Pedro, who sneered contemptuously at the presumptuous youth.

"I brought it on myself," Marian chided herself as she crossed the park toward home. "If I had not kept the charm I could not have worn it and he would not have seen it and spoken. Of course he had a right to under the circumstances. Without a doubt he is 'J. M. Beckwith,' for he was searching the path in the very spot where I found it. He probably values it highly. I fancy he picked it up in India or China, and—where have I seen his face before, and his name—it is very familiar! How very brown he was to the very finger tips, and he was well bred, too, and yet I treated him as though he were a cad! I will send it to him tonight!"

But she didn't. Three days passed, and the little white elephant still swung at her belt. Three days she had walked in the park, and three times she had met the tall brown young man, who passed her with a haughtiness equal to her own.

"I suppose he thinks I am an unprincipled character," murmured Marian the third day, just after her dark blue eyes had met his brown ones in a brief glance.

That afternoon she indited a brief note to the owner of the white elephant and prepared a little box in which to send the charm to him. "I will send it the first thing in the morning," she said as she went down to dinner.

Three hours afterward she fastened the ivory elephant to the long gold chain attached to her fan and went to the Gearing dance.

Late in the evening, flushed with dancing and looking very much like a rose in her pink frock, she waited in the conservatory while her partner went for an ice. Mrs. Gearing fluttered down an aisle of orange trees with a tall young man in tow.

"Marian, dear, let me present Mr. Beckwith—Miss Standish. I shall leave you to entertain her, Johnson," she fluttered away again, intercepting the ice laden young man and carrying him captive into the ballroom.

Marian's customary sangfroid abandoned her, and she stood with guilty, downcast eyes before the owner of the white elephant. He was looking down at her with a strange expression on his face.

"Have you a dance to spare?" he asked after an awkward silence.

"I am afraid not," she replied in a low tone. Then with a quick movement she detached the charm from her chain and held it toward him in her small gloved palm. "This is yours, I believe," she added breathlessly. "I found it that day in the park, and I have intended to return it, but it was so pretty I have delayed"—Her voice faltered, and her lovely eyes filled with tears.

Beckwith was looking at her agitated face with very tender eyes.

"Don't distress yourself, Miss Standish," he said earnestly. "Of course I am delighted to find it, but there was no harm in your keeping it as long as you wished."

"Please take it now," she said hurriedly.

"How did you know it was mine?" he asked as he placed the little elephant in his pocket.

"I saw the advertisement in the paper the next morning, and then—that day—when I met you in the park—and you saw it and spoke to me—I don't know what you thought!"

"I never saw it!" he laughed cheerfully. "You had dropped this, and I was about to call your attention to it when you and the dog froze me with—looks!" He took from an inner pocket a small daintily embroidered handkerchief. Marian joined in his laugh, but she felt very uncomfortable when he returned the handkerchief to its hiding place with an air of quiet possession. A certain expression about his mouth enlightened her as to his identity.

"You must be Johnson Mordaunt Beckwith, the explorer. I have read your book on East Indian islands, and I am sure there is a portrait in the front of the book." She was radiant with interest.

"Guilty!" he admitted promptly. "Now, how am I to reward your honesty, Miss Standish?" he asked with mock seriousness.

"Tell me the meaning of the mysterious rattle within the charm. I am dying to know," she replied.

"I cannot tell you now," he said, with sudden gravity. "Perhaps some day I may, if you will let me."

Three months later, when she had consented to marry him, Johnson Beckwith told her the brief story of the white elephant.

"It was given to me as a mark of esteem by an Indian prince," he said. "In itself the elephant is one of a multitude of similar curios, but"—He detached it from his fob, and with a slight twist of his fingers the gold band slipped away and the charm fell in halves, and from one of the halves rolled a marvelous ruby. "This," continued Beckwith tenderly, "was the gift of the prince, and I placed it in here for safe keeping. I planned that some day it would be worn by my wife."

"Was it not wonderful that I should find it, Johnson?" she asked as his arms encircled her.

"It is the most wonderful adventure that has ever befallen me, darling," he said as he kissed her lips.

Trousers.

The shape, being loose around the knees and ankles, shows sailors' trousers to be quickly rolled over the knees if it is necessary to leap into shallow water, such as is necessary when beaching a boat. Thus, by keeping the trousers dry, the men are able to move more quickly and do not suffer from cold. The sailor's uniform is not subject to varying orders of fashion, wherefore seafarers of today wear clothes of essentially the same pattern as those prescribed for them when the American navy was first established. This was taken with little change from that of the British navy, which was adopted by order of King George III. about the middle of the eighteenth century. For many centuries men almost universally wore "breeches" (also known as "small clothes"), a garment which, whether tight or full, never reached below the knee, though during the seventeenth century a loose garment, known as "breeches" or "slyders," came into general use among the working classes, at first probably used as overalls. A picture of the pirate William Teach, known to have been painted in 1734, shows him in long trousers, wherefore it is supposed that men who followed the sea were among the first to adopt the more comfortable garment.—Housekeeper.

For the purpose of testing the sight and the fitting of glasses. EXAMINATIONS ARE FREE. Prices from $2 to $8. We do not peddle. Those wishing to consult us must call at the Hotel; all will be treated courteously whether an order is given or not.

DULL SCHOLARS

The backwardness of some children in their studies is more often some defect in the vision, which makes it a difficult and often painful task to apply themselves to their lessons. School will soon begin, and any child who is troubled with headaches, sore eyes, nervousness, or any kind of eye strain, should be brought in on this trip, so that they can attend without any danger to their sight.

WHAT CAUSES HEADACHES

Many people suffer with headaches and nervousness and do not suspect the cause. The nerves that control the eyes become overworked and are weakened because they are always in use, if the eyes are open, thereby causing headache. These opticians can tell your trouble without asking a single question. Most invariably people, who have for years been having trouble to procure glasses suitable to their eyes, have been laboring under the impression that the principal value of a pair of glasses was in the quality of the material used in their construction. They do not stop for an instant to realize that the only true value that can be placed on a pair of glasses is the accurate correction which the skilled optician can give. The interior of the eye has no secrets for these opticians. By the aid of proper instruments all defects of sight are discovered and proper glasses are then fitted.

NOTICE

These visits are made regularly every month but this time the return trip will be made in October instead of September, therefore, if you have been intending to see about your eyes come in next week.

Only a Few Days Until School Begins

We wish to call the attention of mothers to the elegant line of Dress Materials. This week we received a splendid assortment of Fall Styles in Dress Gingham, Percales and Serges—10 to 25c yd.

We are showing two numbers in Children's Stockings at 15c a pair, which are very special—one a medium, and the other a heavy weight. These stockings have always sold at 20 to 25c a pair. In order to get them to sell at this price, we had to take one hundred dozens for spot cash. We will be pleased to show you these when in the store. We are positive we can save you five cents or more a pair.

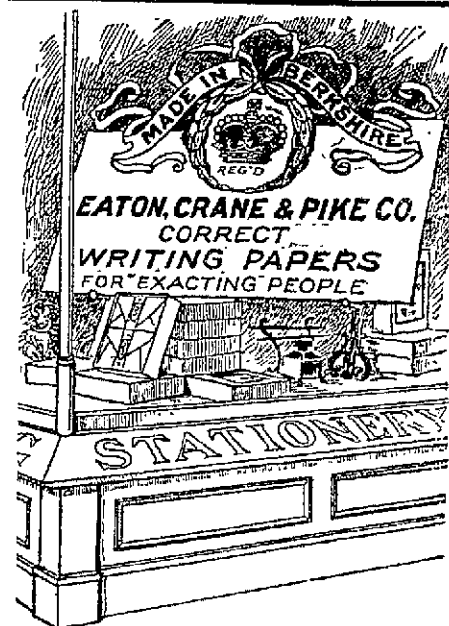

Children's Handkerchiefs---dainty, and neat little stripes and figures at 5, 8 and 10c. Also plain ones at same prices.

School Shoes. This department is especially strong just now in this line. We show elegant, strong and good wearing little shoes made up in tough kid and calf at $1 and $1.25. If you want the very best shoes made—buy the Budd's Shoes; they cost you a little more than some other makes, but they'll last twice as long.

Bedford County Fair

We hear so much about the Fair this summer that we know it's going to be a Cracker-Jack. Being under a new management this year, every one is doing his best to make it a great big success. Make out a list NOW of what you will be able to take, and work on these items so that you may win the prize. Remember, the premiums won't be little, measly ones, as in former years. A whole week of pleasure is provided, and we know you won't be disappointed.

During this Fair Week we are going to make prices so attractive that you will be glad to spend a portion of your time in this big store. We will have many attractive articles on display not seen at the Big Fair.
